

McDonald's KSA gives the chance for 3 children to visit Kennedy Space Station

September 30, 2019

On the occasion of the 25th anniversary of McDonald's in the Western and Southern regions of Saudi Arabia, a competition was launched celebrating the 50th anniversary of the first man to land on the moon in order for children to have a fun and educational journey.

McDonald's strives to create unforgettable moments with its young customers and decided to hold a competition where three children were chosen to win two travel tickets for them and their parents to visit Kennedy Space Station in Orlando, Florida in the USA and experience an exceptional adventure in NASA.

McDonald's announced the rules of participation of the competition through their social media channels and it was as follows: the child can take a picture inspired by outer space holding the new Happy Meal toy, Peanuts NASA Toy and publish it on Twitter with the hashtag #McDonaldsKSA during the time set for the competition from August 20th to September 24th, 2019.

The Deputy General Manager of Reza Food Services Co. Limited, Mr. Mohamed Ali Reza, expressed his great enthusiasm for this initiative, which touches the passion of children and stimulates their wide imagination in discovering outer space and going through a unique educational experience with McDonald's Saudi Arabia.
